

Whatever FCC can do to promote greater choices for consumers should be a top priority.

I reside in a captive market where Time Warner controls cable Broadband access via cable TV. Time Warner's franchise for cable TV should not be allowed to extend to internet broadband services without some fair competition from independent internet service providers.

Time Warner basically operates a Cable Monopoly in this city and many other locations in the USA. TW's cost structure for internet broadband should be audited by the FCC.